Alpha-1 Virtual Support Group Call
Clinical Trials and Research Registry Update
Audio Conference May 30

On May 30, the Alpha-1 Foundation is holding a "virtual support group" audio conference. The audio conference will present an update on the Alpha-1 Antitrypsin Deficiency research registry and current Alpha-1 clinical trials.

The Alpha-1 Foundation Research Registry at the Medical University of South Carolina is a confidential database of Alphas and Alpha-1 carriers across the country who are willing to participate in research. The research ranges from big projects like enlisting in a clinical trial, to small projects like filling out a research questionnaire.

To take part, call 1-800-920-7487. When prompted, enter the participant passcode 9335 9985 #. Please call in and join at least five minutes early. For questions or more information about the audio conference, contact the Alpha-1 Foundation at info@alpha1.org. For more information about the Alpha-1 Foundation Research Registry or to enroll, visit https://alphaoneregistry.org/research_registry.

Alpha-1 Antitrypsin Deficiency is a genetic condition can result in serious lung disease or liver disease. Learn more at https://www.alpha1.org/.
